Broadcast time signals will almost certainly abandon leap seconds. What name will that time scale have? UTC, and thus all civil time? Or TI, for navigation and computers? Without leap seconds UTC would cease to correspond to the count of calendar days as determined by measuring earth rotation.